The Arnold Sentinel

"Serving the South Loup River Valley"

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 2023

CUSTER COUNTY, ARNOLD, NEBRASKA 69120

(USPS 032480)

SINGLE COPY: 75 CENTS

VOLUME 107, NUMBER 21

Street Fills Up Last Thursday for Halloween Carnival

Even though the weather wasn't great, it seemed everyone who could turned out for Thursday's Halloween Carnival & Contest. Downtown's main street started filling up after an early-out for school with every conceivable costume and age group, from tiny tikes to middle-schoolers. Kids played games set up by student volunteers in and around Koubek Gardens, visited the decorated trunks set up for trunk-or-treating, and went in and out of businesses, where they were welcomed with treats by business owners. They were even able to take a pretend cruise and have their picture taken in a Barbie car in Four County Boutique. Because of the chilly weather, age groups were called into the Rialto Theatre for the costume judging. Judges Kay Lohmiller, Carlene Lanham, and Laura Garrison chose the top three winners in each group and beforehand, the top three trunks.

This year's organizers for the Chamber-sponsored event were Rose Bierman and Katie Weinman. Please turn to page 8 to see all of the winners.

Who couldn't help but notice cowboy Kowen Dalrymple riding a chicken down the street for some Halloween fun? - Courtesy photo

Soldier Zover Tickle concentrates, as he takes aim at a line of empty Mountain Dew cans at the carnival. - Janet Larreau photo

Aardvark Season Opens Nov. 30

Permits On Sale Now, $200.00 Bounty

Tiff Varney reported will be prosecuted; he's ty for the second aardvark hunt of 2023 has increased to $200.00, but this will be needed. The permit, costing $5.00, will authorize you to hunt one (1) resident aardvark within the Arnold territory. Legal hunting hours are all hours beginning Novemden in the November 30 nold Insurance Agency. issue of The Sentinel. If a Proceeds from the purhunter finds the aardvark chase of permits will without holding a permit, go to the Arnold School the aardvark will be re-re- greenhouse project. leased. Tiff said poachers last week that the boun- not sure how at this time, but he'll come up with something.

Permits are now availtime, a hunting permit able to purchase at First State Insurance, Arnold Insurance, Bank, Four County Boutique, and BrewBakers, or by calling Tiff. There is no age limit to participate.

Sponsors of the holiday hunt and the $200.00 in Permit holders will have Chamber Bucks are Tiff, one chance to read the First State Insurance, clue, which will be hid- Pinnacle Bank, and Ar-

BEAN BAG TOSS - A carnival participant tosses a bean bag at the board in an attempt to land the bag into the clowns' open mouths to win a prize. It was one of several games kids had a chance to play at Thursday's Halloween Carnival in downtown Arnold. Youth from the school set up and manned the games for Chamber. -Debbie Connelly photo

Behind The Scenes... Local creativity props up One-Act

Art students Samantha and EvaLynn Wonch use their talent to paint the backdrops for the A.H.S. One-Act "Anne of Green Gables." - Courtesy photo

A.H.S. One-Act matters. Team will be presenting the turn-of-the-20th-century play "Anne of Green Gables" this season and after weeks of practice, the students are set to compete in their first dual November 4 at North Platte High School. While team members work on their acting skills, many other people have been involved behind-the-scenes in creating and finding impossible seemingly props that fit the period.

"Props are an important detail to set the stage and feel for any stage show. When telling a story of a community in the early 1900s, we try to be as accurate as possible to that time period," said Head

One-Act Coach Lana Cool. The play, adapted by Karen Layman from the novel by L.M. Montgomery, tells the story of elderly Marilla Cuthbert and her shy brother Matthew. When they decide to adopt an for North Platte Commu-When it comes to props, orphan to help with farm nity Playhouse, is an ex-disappointment is that quality matters and effort work, they expect a boy to pert in period costuming our audience members Instead, a talkative, imag- in making our actors and inative girl with fiery red actresses look great." hair shows up - Anne (with an E) Shirley. The for this particular play trials and tribulations are newspapers. "Did You the Cuthbert's fear come Hear?" is a main thread to pass as Anne insults that weaves through the Marilla's best friend, story and depicts the smacks the school's prize way the community acpupil with a slate, and cepts (or doesn't) the new inadvertently serves her quirky orphan that has best friend a disastrous moved into town. The drink. All while the town newspapers are utilized to of Avonlea looks on with some of the stand-out rehearsing with old Sentiprops that come to mind nel's, but wanted to make chalkboard slates and an old-time chalkboard for Holly Remund contractthe school scenes, vintage costumes, and an the Arnold Sentinel and heirloom baby bassinet passed down for four generations.

"We pride ourselves on paying attention to details. It matters," said Lana. "So we put a lot of effort and attention to research and making sure we are telling the story in the most accurate way possible. We are lucky to have wonderful support our team to use on stage from smart people. Miss Berglund and Mr. Mohr It's so cool. We are so work closely with us to create beautiful stage pieces and custom built their time and talents for and painted backdrops to set the scene. Sue McKain, the costume designer

arrive at the train station. and is the key component

Another important prop create a sense of spreadcuriosity and speculation. ing "news" or gossip. Lana said for this play, Lana said they started out antique-looking sure they were authentic to the time period, so ed the talented gals at discussed the possibility of recreating an authentic-looking newspaper.

"The newspaper turned out so much more wonderful than we could have imagined," said Lana. "Janet and Debbie embraced the project and researched and worked hard to create a beautiful and authentic prop for and have as a keepsake. grateful for the gals at the Arnold Sentinel who gave our play production team. What a beautiful act of support for these hard working kids. My only

AVONLEA ADVOCATE

WORD IS, CUTHBERTS ADOPTING A BOY

ANNE SAYS THEY DON'T WANT HER!

OUTRAGE ENSUES

One-thousand copies of a one-of-a-kind newspaper, The Avonlea Advocate, was designed and sent to press especially for the "Anne of Green Gables" play by the gals at the Sentinel.

and judges won't be close each newspaper." enough to the stage to see all the fun personalized to see this season's full details and headlines and schedule of competitions. illustrations that are in

Please turn to page 4