The Arnold Sentinel

"Serving the South Loup River Valley"

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 2025

CUSTER COUNTY, ARNOLD, NEBRASKA 69120

(USPS 032480)

SINGLE COPY: 75 CENTS

VOLUME 109, NUMBER 24

Local Vets Tell Their Story Through Exhibit

ber the tragic day, May 20, 1972, that Warrant Officer Dean K. Leach's family received word that he had been killed in action in Vietnam. At a first-ever local veterans' memorabilia exhibit held last week, the yellow telegram and letter from Washington D.C., informing the family were on display.

Viewers were taken back in time, as 29 local veterans and their families had the chance to tell their

Many people in the Ar- story as part of Veterans tears at Dean's exhibit. nold community remem- Day activities. With each (The entire exhibit) revet/family in charge of their own area, exhibits of memorabilia from World War I to the present were set up in the school's worked with everyone in-

> Included in the exhibit were war-time photos, medals, uniforms, certificates, weapons, Swastikas, newspaper clippings, and letters and telegrams. For those attending, it brought those stories to

"There were a lot of ally impacted the kids," said Melva Phillips, who undertook the project with Jeanne Staroski, and volved.

The exhibit included: American War Mothers -1917 - 1925.

Lee Bailey - WWI Harry J. Peters - WWI -1915-1916

Lawrence Lynch - WWII - 1942-1945

> See Vets' Exhibit, page 8

Brock Dailey harvests corn for Cool Farms just west of the Arnold Cemetery last Wednesday, November 12. This corn will make its way to Gothenburg and on to the Frito-Lay processing plant. - Debbie Connelly photo

Local historical military memorabilia was on display for the November 10 performance and at the Veterans Day Program on November 11, at Arnold Public School.

Do You Like Fritos?

If you have purchased picture. The crew was any Frito-Lay chips you picking corn just south most likely have tried a of town across from the local farm's corn.

Nebraska, facility is a Brock asked, "Do you like major hub for corn west Fritos? This corn is foodof the Mississippi Riv- grade and is being hauled er. It receives corn from to the collection point in approximately 125 local Gothenburg." farmers, within a 60-mile Farms of Arnold.

The Sentinel visited with Brock Dailey of Cool Farms on November 12 in February 2024. At the fachopes of getting a harvest tory the corn is cleaned, Arnold Cemetery. After Frito-Lay's Gothenburg, taking a couple pictures,

Brock shared that he radius for its products, was one of 25 Frito-Lay one of which is Cool growers in the area that was invited to tour PepsiCo's Frito-Lay facility in Topeka, Kansas, in sized, cooked, washed and ground before it's used. Finally, the chips are seasoned and packaged.

As for Cool Farm's 2025 corn harvest Brock reported that they are a bit behind this year due to the moisture content being high and the corn needing more time to dry

"Last year we finished up the first week of November. We should be finishing up the middle of next week," said Brock.

Your Story Matters

Not Too Far Distant play draws great crowd

By Janet Larreau

Your story matters. This was the message given to the Arnold community and its young people at a special event held on Monday evening, November 10, when the play Not Too Far Distant was presented to an appreciative crowd in the school's auditorium. Brought to Arnold by the Blixt Arts Lab, playwright Becky Boesen and a small group of actors presented the live play, and held interactive workshops and learning sessions designed to inform students about World War II, the Holocaust, and veterans appreciation. A $2,000.00 Nebraska Humanities Foundation grant, written by ACFF intern Eli Rogers and received by the Arnold Area Historical Society, made it all possible.

After Monday evening's presentation of the play, Boesen spoke at Tuesday's Veterans Day program about the main character in the play, Staff Sergeant and Medic Clarence Williams. "...He wasn't drafted to fight in World War II. He enlisted. A mechanic from near Denton, Nebraska, he quietly believed in a constitutional republic and felt a deep responsibility, as an American, to help defend it. Slightly older than many of those called to service and already married to his wife Gretchen, Clarence wrote her a letter every single day. He also took a camera to war, which at the time, then as Boesen got deeper was nearly unheard of,"

she said. Seventy-five years af-

After the performance of Not Too Far Distant, held at the Arnold school auditorium, on November 10, cast members and Director Becky Boesen (on mic) held a Q&A and heard stories from the audience. - Debbie Connelly photos

400 letters and photos that Clarence had sent home to Gretchen. Most of the letters were boring, and into them, Clarence, in his own words, finally shared with Gretchen what had ter Clarence wrote those been almost unspeakable. letters and took those April 29, 1945, the day the photos, Boesen agreed to 42nd and 45th Infantries write a play, and within a stumbled upon and lib-his own eyes. And without his letters, without his stories, and the stories of all those who served alongside Clarence and the stories of survivors, we'd have no way of truly knowing what happened other death camps," Bo-first death camp, Dachau. ries matter. Clarence's country and the fragile "Clarence saw this with story matters. Your story matters. Some stories are difficult to tell, and even harder to hear, but they demand our attention, our reflection, and our remembrance. We must honor the sacrifices of Clarence, the Rainbow Diat Dachau or any of the vision, and all those who, across generations, have stood in defense of our beauty of democracy."

Boesen said it was truly an honor to spend time with the remarkable community of Arnold. "I was deeply moved by the level of participation from people of all ages and generations, and es-

> See STORY MATTERS, page 8.

Arnold's kindergarten class led the Pledge of Allegiance for a large crowd at Tuesday's Veterans Day Program.

ACFF Fundraiser Is Nov. 22

The Arnold Community Foundation Fund will hold its annual fundraiser, Saturday, Nov. 22, at the community center.

The social hour begins at 5:00 p.m., with dinner served at 6:30 p.m., and the live auction kicking off at 7:30 p.m. A silent auction will also be held. Tickets are $30.00 if paid by 12:00 noon on Nov. 21 or $35.00 the day of the event, and are available at Pinnacle Bank, Oakbrook Physical Therapy or from any ACFF mem-